VIII. DIRECTOR COMMENTS

Director Hill: "No comment."

Director Lipscomb: “Quickly, I visited the Cooper Lake and Bernice Lake facilities yesterday. Dustin Highers gave me a great update on the activities down there so I appreciate that. Cooper Lake looks good – looks in pretty good shape. There is still some PCB paint issues that we’re dealing with. I saw the combustion inspection underway at Bernice Lake. The turbine looks good, the new water injection system appears to be working as expected so that was a good tour. First time I had been to Bernice Lake. Again, I’m very impressed with the capabilities of our operators and our maintenance techs down there. They were essentially doing work on their own without assistance from manufacturer reps, etc. and it’s looking good.”

Director Reiser: “No comments.”

Director Gimarc: “Yes, Madam Chair. The majority has taken a sharp turn backward from openness, transparency and accountability. The refusal to even try, emphasize try, to come up with a procedure to review the classified executive session tapes is a direct (unintelligible) irresponsible act from my viewpoint. It puts the magic words openness and transparency from a real meaningful term under the last leadership to your magic words – it don’t work very well. Secondly, the motion for executive session did not match the topics discussed. Madam Chair overrode objections from Director Vazquez and made no attempt to correct the error. This is high-handed and short-sighted. Also puts the Board’s veracity at risk. This (unintelligible) membership would like to know how your new Board is operating.”

Director Nordlund: “No comment other than the fact – I just have to pick up on one thing – like I said, I think that the Agenda item actually did match the topic and that the reason we talked about the export license is because it is relevant to the gas negotiations. It’s a subset of the issue of the gas negotiations – so I don’t think that was really incorrect (unintelligible).”

Director Vazquez: “It was the motion did not state explicitly when we had the motion to go into executive session – the subject that was provided was gas negotiations. Everyone around this Boardroom discussed – we discussed more than gas negotiations. We discussed just the recent decision of a regulatory body to allow further LNG exports by the producers and that was the subject of discussion in executive session. The open meetings laws required that when we move and we have a motion made in public that it reflects what we’re talking about. So that motion was flawed in that it did not have everything we discussed. We’ve been cautioned by legal counsel and if they were here they would caution us again about doing that.” Chair Logan – “So, as we proceed in the future what we’ll figure out is a procedural way to deal with that.” “Just state what the subject is.”

Chair Logan: No comment.

IX. ADJOURNMENT

Director Lipscomb moved and Director Vazquez seconded the motion to adjourn. The meeting adjourned at 5:32 p.m.
